Artists from all over North America come to Ann Arbor in July. For exhibitors like these four, though, the fairs are a lot closer to home.

Photographer Rich Wood

The beauty in simple things

A close-up of a rusty bolt and cotter pin fills two-thirds of Rich Wood's business card. Above his name, the card reads "Surface Photography." Don't think you've missed a technique or trend if you're not familiar with the term.

"I made it up," explains Wood with a quick-breaking smile. A fifty-eight-year-old retired Ypsilanti High School speech and English teacher, he recently embraced a new career using art fairs and galleries to sell the photographs he's been taking for decades. With his work, as with the term "surface photography," he hopes to communicate his fascination with shapes, textures, and patterns.

"I like rust, weathering, abandoned factories . . . the beauty in simple things," Wood explains. He believes composition is key to a good photograph, although he approaches subject matter as one big, wide-open smorgasbord. Wood says he takes his camera every time he leaves his woodsy home just west of Ann Arbor, unless he's just running to the store; he wants to be ready to capture any image that catches his eye. The 100-plus different photographs he's selling in this year's State Street Area Art Fair include subjects as diverse as church domes, a corn crib, an egg seller in Barcelona, empty Michigan Stadium seats, kidney beans (magnified by his new macro lens), mannequins, a 1949 Cadillac taillight, wilting wildflowers, old baseball bats, and Florida flamingos.

Many of his photographs have the quality of abstractions. His studies of unripe tomatoes on leafy vines ripple with red and green intensity. They look as if someone fiddled in the darkroom to enhance the colors, but Wood bristles at the suggestion. "I'm not interested in playing with processing," he says. "In playing with perspective, yes."

To get the view he wants, Wood sometimes lies on his back and points the camera up. That's how he shot the op-art Culverts, pulling off the road in North Carolina to get the exact angle that would allow the corrugated metal to hover between concave and convex spherical shapes. A large print of Culverts hangs in the Washtenaw County Drain Commission office. Visitors puzzle over it.

"Some think it's zebra mussels. Others think it's umbrellas," says drain commissioner Janis Bobrin.

Bobrin says she and her engineer associates enjoy Wood's artistic take on the corrugated metal pipe that is central to the work of building drains. "He shows such creativity with unlikely objects," she says, adding that she also likes Wood's photograph of recycled plastic bottles that "shimmer like a rainbow."

Subtle whimsy underscores many of Wood's photographs. His portrait of old Italian men jabbering in a town piazza resonates with cinematic narrative. "I had one shot left on the roll for that one," he says. "But I couldn't have taken another after they were aware of me, anyway."

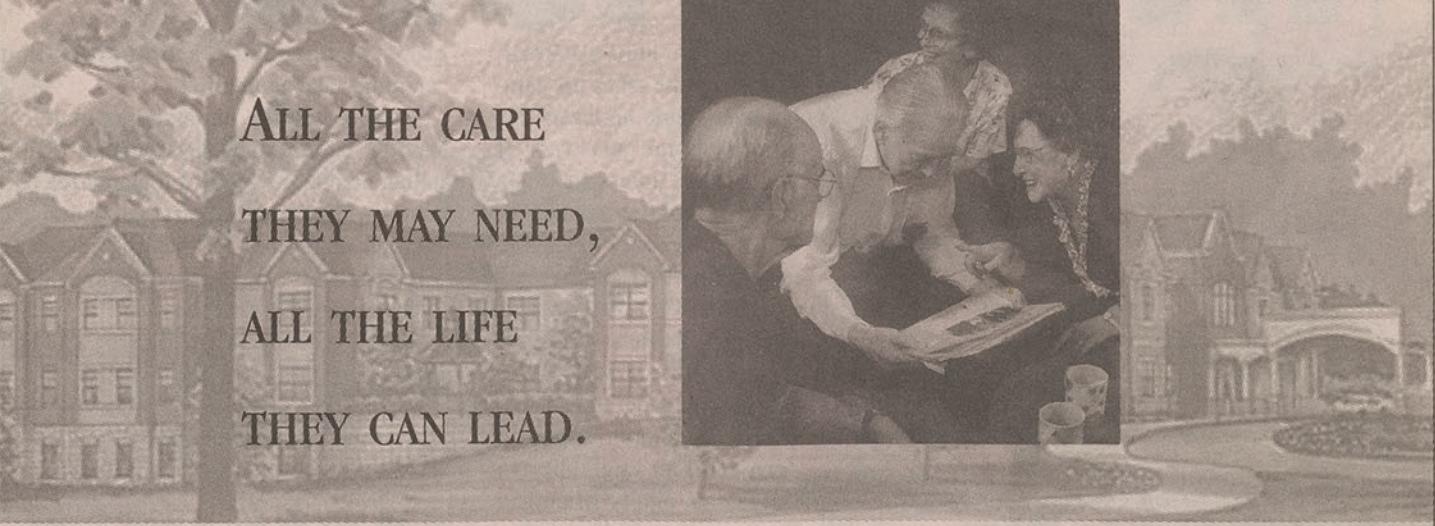

Wood grew up in Chelsea and studied

"It's four long, long days. People think it's easier if you're a local artist. You do get to sleep in your own bed. But you get up early, go down and get things ready, come home after the day, then think you better cook something, maybe frame a few more pictures for tomorrow. . . . Sometimes I think it's more freeing to secure everything in the evening and then have nothing to do but wait for the next cycle."

film and television production before getting his master's degree in education and settling into teaching. Photography was among the subjects he taught at Ypsilanti High and at Washtenaw Community College. Since he retired last year, he's been picking up the pace on the art fair circuit in Michigan and neighboring states. Wood says exhibiting at art fairs is like teaching in that he deals with people all day. "But now I don't have to tell the kid in back to sit down and be quiet anymore," he jokes.

With his pension and his wife's job at the University of Michigan, Wood says he doesn't have to worry about what he's earning, but he knows some artists on the circuit rely on their sales as their only income. "I admire that," he says.

UNIVERSITY LIVING

ALL THE CARE
THEY MAY NEED,
ALL THE LIFE
THEY CAN LEAD.

We understand how difficult it can be for your mom or dad to move from their home because of physical or cognitive difficulties. Particularly if they've been active and interested in life. That's why we created University Living.

Our caring and skilled staff provides excellent care to our residents — with medications, personal assistance or more complicated medical conditions — and provides you with peace of mind.

What really sets us apart is our passion for providing stimulating cultural, physical and social activities so our residents continue to be engaged with life. Using resources from the University of Michigan, we provide provocative discussion groups, lectures and concerts, as well as other activities.

So if the time has come to consider an environment where your parents can receive the assistance they need and participate in interesting activities they can enjoy, then University Living is just right for them.

Now in his fourth year at the State Street fair, Wood says it's very hard work. "It's four long, long days. People think it's easier if you're a local artist. You do get to sleep in your own bed. But you get up early, go down and get things ready, come home after the day, then think you better cook something, maybe frame a few more pictures for tomorrow. . . . Sometimes I think it's more freeing to secure everything in the evening and then have nothing to do but wait for the next cycle."

Wood always scans the work of other photographers at the fairs—"not to get ideas or copy, but just to look." He finds much that is interesting, but also "a lot of windowsills with flowers and bicycles." Wood says high-concept photography might feel right to other photographers, "but that's not how I approach it. I share how things look to me, and I like to be accessible to everyone."

Fiber artist Chris Roberts-Antieau

Surreal sewing

Chris Roberts-Antieau calls one of her fabric compositions Mermaid with Skeleton Plants. It shows a glamorous mermaid gliding serenely over aquatic flowers that grow from tiny human skulls.

The mood of the piece is dreamy and fanciful rather than macabre. Roberts-Antieau credits her parents and grandparents with fostering the rich and quirky imagination that produces such dreamscapes.

"A lot of my designs are based on the magical stuff of childhood reminiscences," she says, sitting in the cutting studio of her home near Manchester. "I try to elevate everyday life to a poignant or humorous level. I believe my mission while I'm here on earth is to bring joy through my work."

That was her goal even before she became a nationally known folk artist whose work is sold in seventy-five galleries from coast to coast. She's also exhibited in top art museums, including the Smithsonian Institution. In Michigan you can find her fiber pieces in galleries from the Peaceable Kingdom in Ann Arbor to Good Goods in Saugatuck. And she's long been a regular at the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair.

Roberts-Antieau's medium, appliquéd fabric, fits what she calls her "primitive/contemporary" drawing style. She starts with a sketch on fabric and then cuts more cloth—her "paint"—to fit the outlines, and sews or embroiders it to the background. The result is a vibrantly colored, whimsical rendering, such as the gloriously tacky yard in Lawn Ornaments.

lipped ladies, and "everyday" angels dressed in country prints. In Roberts-Antieau's hands, the ridiculous seems credible and charming—like the piece Dog in Underpants, which shows exactly what the title states.

She knew from the age of five that she wanted to be an artist. Growing up in Plymouth, she drew constantly. "I was obsessed with drawing horses and constantly copied illustrations from magazines like Vogue. I loved my art classes in high school but never attended art school. Nothing against art school, but I think it tends to blur an artist's vision."

She began to define herself as an artist while managing studio space at the Ann Arbor Art Association (now the Ann Arbor Art Center). After her son Noah was born twenty-five years ago, she started selling her soft sculptures and quilts at arts and crafts fairs throughout the state.

In 1989 Roberts-Antieau took some of her appliquéd vests to the American Crafts Enterprises show in Baltimore. To her amazement, "I was mobbed with people placing orders from stores throughout the country." For about a year she ran a booming wearable art business with a staff of fifteen. But she quickly burned out on the venture.

"It was more about buttonholes and hemlines, about managing and being managed, than about art," she says. After a yearlong break Roberts-Antieau came up with her current form of flat, appliquéd fiber pieces presented in handmade frames. She eventually built a successful Ann Arbor-based business doing work she loved.

When her father, a builder, purchased some property on a remote dirt road, Roberts-Antieau decided to go in with him on the twenty-acre site. She designed a cedar frame home for herself, and her brother built it in 1995. Windows stretching the lengths of the walls offer views of the surrounding glacial moraine and a spring-fed pond. The great room is an airy gallery of vintage circus posters, folk art, and findings from the Ann Arbor Antiques Market. She balances this idyllic existence with the high-energy environment of a second studio in downtown San Diego, California, where she has begun experimenting with oil and acrylic painting.

Glass artist Linda Kirkwood

Visions in light

Linda Kirkwood will turn a wholesale glass warehouse upside down to find the perfect piece of blown sheet glass. "I'll search the end of the earth for specialty glass," she says. "When you have a beautiful piece of glass, it does the work of conveying the vision."

As art director for Ann Arbor Glass-works, Kirkwood executes leaded, etched, residential, church, and commercial work. Since 1986 she and business partner David Lynch have immersed themselves in a glass-based world, sometimes juggling more than twenty-five projects at their Ann Arbor studio. Daily projects range from etching designs into wine bottles for the annual Ann Arbor Art Center Winefest to the laborious and detailed restoration of church windows that have buckled, broken, and faded with time. Kirkwood says she looks forward throughout the year to the "annual creative period that the Summer Art Fair provides," when she can create and show her nature-inspired glass window hangings.

Texture plays a crucial role in Kirkwood's artwork. Meant to have natural light streaming through them, the hangings shiver and hum with the vibrancy of contrast. "My goal is to design something that will enhance a view rather than block one," she says. A single hanging can contain dozens of shapes, sizes, colors, and textures. Others incorporate only three or four contrasting kinds of glass. Each individual piece of glass catches the viewer's attention with its distinct characteristics while contributing to the whole. One of her circular glass hangings combines a deeply pockmarked, opaque semicircle with cloudlike, frosted pie-shaped pieces bisected by strips of violet and aquamarine. Another design works like a textured geometric puzzle filled with arced pieces of rose, amber, burgundy, indigo, and beveled glass.

Even these abstract pieces are obviously inspired by the natural world. Kirkwood also creates more literal depictions, which include blooming flowers, a sun-kissed "Tree of Life" leaning over a riverbank, and a twining grape arbor.

Fran Weinstein, who hired Kirkwood to create a series of window panels for her home, says she plants herself in front of them while talking on the phone. "I love staring into the swirls of glass," she says.

Kirkwood's blown sheet glass gets its distinct personality from the way it is made. "The difference between blown glass and machine-made glass is like the difference between polyester and silk," she says. "The clarity and brilliance are amazing, and the cuttability is so easy. It's expensive, but just looking at it you can tell."

A solid design is also vital. Lynch describes Kirkwood's trademarks as "even lines, clean soldering, and good structure." In fact, exhibiting at the Summer Art Fair has tested Kirkwood's structural skills: her hangings range from eighteen to twenty-four inches in diameter, and the traditional white artist booth mutes the effect of the glass. So she engineered her own booth, adding an eighteen-inch extension at the top where she can display more hangings against a backdrop of natural light. The booth sets up and breaks down in minutes.

Kirkwood, who lives in Hartland, used to exhibit in other fairs but now concentrates exclusively on Ann Arbor. This year marks her fifteenth season with the Ann Arbor Summer Art Fair. "It's like a big party, because our friends and customers all drop by," she says. And the minimal travel distance helps reduce breakage. Being close to home also makes things easy for local customers interested in alterations or commissioned work.

She isn't one to sit and read a book at her booth. "It's a great time to talk with other artists," she says. "I love the feedback from people of different ages and backgrounds. People just come up and tell you what they think." —Kyle Norris

Furniture artist Mark Orr

The scavenger

Recently a customer phoned Mark Orr to tell him about a man on Long Island who was retiring from the antique furniture business and had a huge collection of table legs. Orr drove to New York and came home with 2,000 table legs in his trailer. He laid them all out on his front lawn like a giant puzzle and began to search for workable pairs.

This is the kind of passion that has overtaken Orr in middle age. Over the years, while running a successful commercial photography business out of his home in southwest Ann Arbor, Orr has become a skilled wood-carver, painter, and bentwood furniture maker. Five years ago, when he turned forty, Orr took an artistic leap of faith.

It started innocently enough: he set out to make a frame for a painting. He found an old casement window with shutters. He figured the shutters would make the painting seem like a window. Then he realized that if he unfolded the shutters, attached a wooden back to them, and mounted shelves inside, he'd have that stereo cabinet he needed. He added other found objects—doorknobs for handles, portions of antique molding, old table legs, two paneled windows for doors.

He put it all together in his garage. His artist friends liked the result so much that they encouraged him to make more. Orr took photos of his work for a portfolio and was accepted on his first try by the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair in 1998. A fairgoer bought the cabinet right away. "I still don't have a stereo cabinet," he chuckles.

Since 1999 Orr has been a fixture at Art Fair Village on Church Street. He also takes his pieces to ten to fifteen other fairs a year. Ann Arbor, he says, "is the best fair. It's amazing in terms of sales, and it's my hometown."

These days he works constantly to keep up with the demand for his creations—sofa tables, CD cabinets, mirrors, bookcase cabinets, end tables, candleholders, wall cabinets, and boxes. All his pieces include parts of antiques and found treasures. He calls them "scavenger furniture art." The enterprise is so successful that he's doing less and less commercial photography.

Much of his time is spent scavenging. He's a regular at the Ann Arbor Antiques Market. "And I've got people looking for me," he says. It's a family affair. Orr's parents in Tennessee go to antique fairs and flea markets and save good finds for him. "We're all pickers," he says. "In the beginning, I just bought things I liked." Now he has a more trained eye.

Antique shutters, which he used in his first piece, remain a driving force in Orr's creations. He also has turned old bowling pins into cabinet legs and found uses for little things like old watches, antique keys, and dice—the tiny shiny treasures a raven might find for its nest. And Orr weaves in his talent for wood carving. Nearly all his pieces include a hand-carved raven. "The raven is a scavenger too," he explains, "my mascot."

His wife, Ann, who has a full-time job as a children's software editor, adds many of the finishing touches to Orr's furniture pieces. She uses broken antique dishes to create mosaic tabletops and decorate her husband's handmade wooden boxes.

Orr's sister, Kathi, also plays a vital role in his creations. Although he never paints the antique shutters, Orr wants the new parts he builds, such as the backs of his cabinets, to blend in with the salvaged pieces. He's hired his sister nearly full time to help with the painting, a five-step process that includes applying a crackle medium to mimic aging. There's no attempt to mislead the customer: Orr explains in his pamphlets exactly what he's up to.

For now, the Orrs are working out of a shop in their garage and a studio in a large, sunny home that also houses their three children, two parakeets, and a curious white rabbit. Soon the family will get the garage back: Orr is moving the shop to a larger space in Dexter, where he will have plenty of room for his table saw, drill press, band saw, and other tools he needs to create his one-of-a-kind furniture art.

The Ann Arbor Street Art Fair, the original 43rd annual

www.artfair.org

The original juried fair, the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair, is located in the South University area. The fair has frequently been ranked the number one outdoor fine art fair in the nation by both the National Association of Independent Artists and Sunshine Artists Magazine. Each year the non-profit Street Art Fair selects nearly 200 artists from an average of 1800 applicants through a rigorous jury process. The 2002 fair features nearly 70 new artists from all over the country.

In addition to the incredible visual art display, fairgoers will enjoy:

- Street performers such as the world famous boogie woogie piano player Mr. B, popular jugglers Jonathan Park and Josh Casey plus many more;
- Daily artist demonstrations at select artist booths and the Potters Guild display;
- Free art activities for the entire family at the Art Zone on Church St. north of South University from 10am until 7pm daily;
- Art Zone — adaptive art equipment for wheelchair users at the Artful Kid Zone each evening;
- Souvenirs including T-shirts and posters featuring the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair 2002 featured art by Pennsylvania artist David Stabley and items embroidered with the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair logo.
- Be a Friend of the Fair by signing up at any of the Information Booths and learning more about the Fair's move to the Burton Carillon Tower area in 2003.

Dedicated to the visual arts through connecting the finest artists from across the country with a knowledgeable and appreciative audience, the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair also sponsors local exhibits, awards scholarships to visual art students at area schools, places art in public buildings and provides major support for the South University Area Association.

Next year the fair will be moving to its new location on the streets surrounding the Burton Carillon Tower and Hill Auditorium. Please visit our information booths for more information about our exciting new home.

A broad base of community support from individuals, local businesses and organizations, city government, educational institutes and other area non-profits is essential to our success. The 43rd annual Ann Arbor Street Art Fair recognizes and thanks these individuals for their support: the artists, the jurors, the many wonderful and knowledgeable individuals who volunteer their time during the fair to assist the artists and the audience and...

ann arbor Street Art Fair

Since 1960, the original Ann Arbor art fair has evolved into one of the nation's premier fine arts events. Begun with fewer than 100 local artists, it now draws approximately 1,800 applications each year for its 199 exhibit spaces. Specialized artist juries assure a consistently high level of quality, attracting serious collectors and representatives from major art galleries around the country. (An additional sixteen exhibitors from the Ann Arbor Potters Guild are selected through a separate jurying process.) In 2003 the Street Art Fair will move across the Diag to the city streets surrounding U-M's Burton Tower.

The Place: The Ann Arbor Street Art Fair takes place on South University Avenue from Washtenaw to Tappan, on East University Avenue between Willard and the University of Michigan campus, and on the half block of Church north of South University.

Ann Arbor Street Art Fair, Inc.: This nonprofit organization is governed by an eighteen-member board of directors that includes artists, townspeople, and members of the U-M community. For information about exhibitors or about the 2003 fair, July 16–19, write to Ann Arbor Street Art Fair, P.O. Box 1352, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48106, or call (734) 994-5260. (Applications for the 2003 fair are due in early December 2002.) Website: www.artfair.org

Awards: On the first day of the fair, Wednesday, July 17, two jurors will select ten exhibits of exceptionally high quality and originality to receive $300 cash awards. Look for the ribbons in the artists' booths on Thursday.

Artist Demonstrations:

Eighteen artists, along with members of the Potters Guild, will be demonstrating their crafts at their booths. See the Artist Showcases box on p. 23, or check the list of schedules and locations posted near the information booth on the corner of South University and East University and on signs throughout the fair.

Art Activities: Young and old can try their hands at artistic expression at the Art Zone on Church north of South University from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. each day. Sponsored by Farmer Jack and staffed by teachers from the Michigan Art Education Association, the booth features free art activities designed for the whole family. From 5 to 8:30 p.m. Wed.–Fri., the Create a Difference project gives artists of all abilities the chance to help create a mural using wheelchairs with specially designed paint roller equipment. The project is sponsored by the Washtenaw Intermediate School District; Ann Arbor Street Art Fair, Inc.; and Very Special Arts, a nationwide organization that gives people with disabilities the opportunity to create art and educates the community about disabilities through art. Eastern Michigan University art students present an all-ages clay sculpture activity, Wed.–Fri. 3–7 p.m. and Sat. 3–6 p.m., based on Michigan artist Jerry Berta's clay workshop.

Information Booths: Can't find your favorite artist? Ask the volunteers at the fair's information booths at South University and East University, South University and Tappan, and South University and Washtenaw, and at the Art Zone on Church. Pick up information about the 2003 fair relocation, sign up to receive updates, and learn about "Be a Friend of Ann Arbor Street Art Fair," a group that supports the fair. ♦

EASIER ACCESS TO FAIRS

AATA is making it easier than ever to get to the Ann Arbor Art Fairs. Simply park your car at Briarwood Mall or Pioneer High School for free and take a shuttle to either one of the Art Fairs stops (South University and State or Main and William). And with shuttles running from 9 am to 10 pm Wed-Fri and 9 am to 7 pm Sat, we'll be ready to go when you are. Cost is just $1.50 each way, but we think you'll find it much more valuable than that. For more information, call 734.996.0400 or visit www.theride.org.

Only service animals are allowed on AATA shuttle buses.

ANN ARBOR STREET

Merchandise Booth: Souvenirs such as posters, T-shirts, tote bags, and hats are on sale at the merchandise booth on the corner of East University and South University, opposite the information booth.

Emergency First Aid: Huron Valley Ambulance staffs this tent near the corner of South University and Tappan, as well as serving all four fairs with EMS bike patrols. It is set up for emergency first aid, including water and ice packs for heat stress, and water for dogs.

Ann Arbor CB & Emergency Radio Team: Volunteers from the Ann Arbor CB & Emergency Radio Team patrol the fair, helping to find lost children and relaying information to fair organizers on everything from crowd problems to weather. The team's headquarters are just north of the intersection of South University and East University.

Live Music and Entertainment: This is the twenty-third year at the fair for boogie-woogie pianist Mark "Mr. B" Braun; he will be at his usual spot on the corner of South University and East University. A variety of artists perform on the stage at South University and Tappan. Guitarist Russell Donnellon will appear intermittently at Washtenaw and South University. For details, see Art Fair Entertainment, p. 71.

Food and Beverages: Dasani, an official fair sponsor, sells water from a booth on South University at Tappan. There are numerous food and beverage merchants in the fair area. See Food at the Fair, p. 77.

Website: The Street Art Fair's site, www.artfair.org, assists artists and fairgoers with artist information, maps, shuttle bus and parking information, and links to local services. An on-line "artist gallery" features exhibitors' artwork and links to individual websites.

On the Move 2003: Next year the Street Art Fair will move across the Diag to the city streets surrounding the U-M's Burton Tower: North University, Thayer, and East Washington. The new surroundings will allow for larger booth space, expanded community activities, and the incorporation of green spaces and architectural landmarks into the fair venue. To bring the big move to life before it even hap-

What do you have to say?™

State Street Area Art Fair

This fair was organized in 1968 by businesspeople on the northwest edges of the U-M Central Campus. They saw the four-day explosion of business on South University during the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair, and they wanted to find a way to lure those same thousands of hungry, thirsty, sophisticated, and curious visitors past their storefronts as well.

The State Street Area Art Fair (SSAAF) has since made a niche of its own. Aggressively juried throughout most of its thirty-five years, it vies for many of the same top artists as the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair; an artist who appeared in one fair last year is likely to show up this year in near State Street on Maynard, Liberty, Thompson, William, and North University. The big line of booths on State Street south of William is actually the campus section of the Summer Art Fair.

State Street Area Association: This nonprofit organization of merchants and other businesspeople sponsors the State Street Area Art Fair and promotes the State Street shopping district. For information on the 2003 fair, July 16–19, or for artists' addresses and phone numbers, write to the State Street Area Art Fair, P.O. Box 7469, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48107, or call (734) 663–6511. the other. This year's fair has 330 exhibitors, of whom well over a third are new this year. (An additional thirty-three artists exhibit their work at the Ann Arbor Fiber Arts Guild's State Street booth through a separate jurying process.)

The Place: "Area" is the key word in this fair's name. The artists are

Prizes and Purchase Awards: This fair awards two $700 best-of-show cash awards (one for two-dimensional works and one for three-dimensional) and eight $175 honorable-mention prizes. The winners' names will be posted at the main information booth on State Street at Liberty on Thursday.

State Street Area Art Fair Print Tent: This booth on State at William sells affordable lithograph reproductions of original works by SSAAF artists. A complete list of participating artists is available at the fair's information booths (see below).

Information Booths: Volunteers answer questions and sell T-shirts, posters, and postcards. There are three booths, all staffed by local organizations. The Ann Arbor Art Center runs the booth at State and Liberty, the Ann Arbor Jaycees are at State and William, and the Huron High School women's rowing team staffs the booth at Liberty and Division.

Michigan Live: Learn more about Michigan's largest local news and information website, Mlive.com. The booth is in front of the offices of Michigan Live, at the corner of Liberty and Division.

First Aid Station: Staffed by paramedics from the Ann Arbor Fire Department, the first aid station is at Liberty and Division. The fire department will also have three tactical units patrolling the fair area to answer questions and provide first aid and safety.

Live Music and Entertainment: There are two performance locations: Liberty Plaza, on the corner of Liberty and Division, sponsored by Herb David Guitar Studio; and State Street near East Washington, coordinated by Steve Bergman of Schoolkids' in Exile. For schedules, see Art Fair Entertainment, p. 71.

Michigan Theater: This ornate restored movie house on Liberty operates a "beer garden" featuring cold beer, bratwurst, snacks, and air-conditioning for weary fairgoers Wed.-Sat. 11 a.m.-9 p.m. The theater sells movie posters, T-shirts, and other film memorabilia, and presents art and foreign films in the evenings (see Art Fair Entertainment, p. 71).

Live Broadcasts: WQKL (107.1 FM—"Kool 107") broadcasts live throughout the fair.

Herb David Guitar Studio: This studio-and-store on Liberty at Fifth Avenue presents its popular porch performances by studio teachers and local musicians at various times throughout the fair.

Nonprofit Organization Booths: Not affiliated with the fairs, the nonprofit booths that line Liberty between Fifth Avenue and Division are a sampler of community causes. Representatives from about seventy local organizations pass out literature and talk about everything from AIDS research to the exploration of Mars.

This is big. Really big! Sue is the largest, most complete Tyrannosaurus Rex ever discovered and she's coming to COSI Toledo.

Check out this authentic, full-size replica of the actual bones from Sue. Archaeologists found about 90% of Sue's skeleton. She has "told" researchers things they never knew about her species.

Thunder into COSI this summer for some prehistoric fun with the biggest thing to hit Toledo in 67 million years. There will be tons of dino-themed exhibits that your family will really dig.

We've Got Music for Your Eyes.

Frederik Meijer Gardens & Sculpture Park
Grand Rapids, Michigan

Eve by Auguste Rodin

Suppose you wanted to create a place where you could take in the history of modern sculpture at a glance—not by turning the pages of a book, but by walking along a winding path in a park in deep summer.

As you walked, you'd journey down the decades, and at every turn you'd come upon a Rodin or Henry Moore or Maillol or Pomodoro—the giants.

Suppose you wanted to create a place where sculpture was gathered where it has always belonged: out among the forces of wind and growth and the shifting light.

You don't need to.

We already have.

FREDERIK MEIJER
& SCULPTURE PARK

Special Exhibition

As part of the summer-long celebration of the opening of our new Sculpture Park, the Gardens is presenting Unwound and Entwined:

Recent Projects by Claes Oldenburg and Coosje van Bruggen. Large major works, indoor sculptures, drawings, and models plus the 25-feet-tall Plantoir, a new addition to our permanent collection.

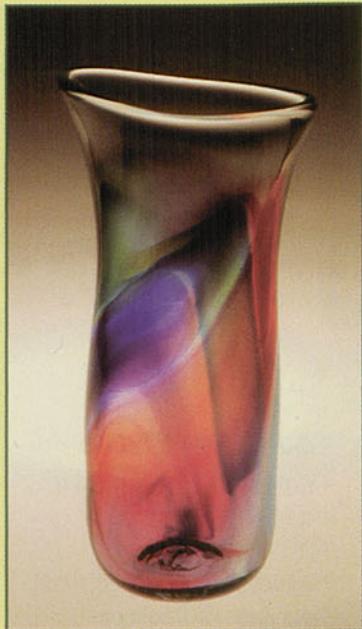

One mile north of the intersection of I-96 and E. Beltline in Grand Rapids. 1-888-957-1580 www.meijergardens.org

ANN ARBOR SUMMER ART FAIR™

Presented by The Michigan Guild of Artists & Artisans
32ND ANNUAL CELEBRATION OF ART

The Ann Arbor Summer Art Fair, organized by The Michigan Guild of Artists and Artisans, is proud to celebrate 32 years of presenting the nation's best in fine arts to the Ann Arbor community. With 900 members who donate their time and energies to the promotion of visual arts in the U.S., The Guild has selected over 470 artists from 37 states to show their work at this award-winning event. Drawing from such a talented pool, the Summer Art Fair represents the largest and most diverse range of art shown at the Ann Arbor Art Fairs. In addition to the spectacular array of artwork on display, the Summer Art Fair also encourages its guests to enjoy the lively, family-oriented entertainment and festivities that take place around the Fair. The Ann Arbor Summer Art Fair and The Michigan Guild would like to recognize the City of Ann Arbor and the Main Street Area Association for their help and support. We would also like to extend a special thanks to all of the volunteers who have given their time and efforts toward making this such an outstanding event, year after year.

ann arbor Summer Art Fair

With more than 460 exhibitors, the Ann Arbor Summer Art Fair is the largest of the Art Fairs. It includes a wide selection of fine art and crafts, everything from painting and glass to fiber arts and clay, at an equally wide range of prices. The exhibitor roster remains relatively stable from year to year, and many loyal customers return each summer to seek out their favorite artists.

The Place: The Summer Art Fair is the only fair with two separate locations: the campus section (booths C1-C244) is on State Street from South University to William; the downtown section (booths D245-D464) is on Main Street from William to Huron, and on Liberty Street from Main to Fifth Avenue.

Michigan Guild of Artists and Artisans: This non-profit organization was created in 1971 to manage the free art fair that had sprung up the year before on the University of Michigan Diag. The Guild now boasts approximately 900 members. The Ann Arbor Summer Art Fair is the only Ann Arbor fair sponsored by the artists themselves. Booths are open to Guild members only, and exhibition privileges are so coveted that members may spend eight years on the waiting list before being offered a space. Artists are juried by a panel of five Guild members and five outside jurors. For information about exhibitors, membership, or the 2003 fair, July 16-19, write to the Michigan Guild at 118 North Fourth Avenue, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48104, or call (734) 662-3382. Website: www.michiganguild.org E-mail: guild@michiganguild.org

Artist Showcase: Five Michigan Guild artists will be demonstrating their work on Liberty between Main Street and Fourth Avenue (see p. 65 for schedule).

Imagination Station: This volunteer-run booth in front of the post office at Liberty and Fifth Avenue features free art activities designed for children, though fairgoers of all ages are welcome to try their hands. Volunteers include members of the YMCA Youth Volunteer Corps. Wed.-Fri. 10 a.m.-6 p.m., Sat. 10 a.m.-4 p.m.

Community Booths: The Summer Art Fair supports various local organizations by giving them free booths sprinkled throughout the downtown section. Groups include Eastern Michigan University, the American Cancer Society, the Humane Society of Huron Valley, the Ann Arbor Police Department, and the YMCA.

Merchandise Booths: You can buy 2002 Summer Art Fair T-shirts and other souvenirs at booths at State Street and South University (campus section) and at Main and Liberty (downtown section).

Information Booths: Guild booths, on State in front of the University of Michigan Museum of Art (campus section) and at the corner of Main and Liberty (downtown section), offer friendly assistance of all kinds.

Live Music and Entertainment: There is a street performance area at Liberty and Main. Local acts include juggler Jonathan Park, guitarist Roy Scoutz, and I think in pictures, not words. Wait; let me rephrase that. I think in both, just not at the same time. It's like a switch that can be turned on by mere will. This gives me an academic edge, but an attention meltdown. Lots of my emotional control is also missing, kind of like the game Roller Coaster Tycoon when the station brakes fail, so there's just no stopping. I guess it's like the frontal lobe of my brain is taking a vacation. When the emotions are "phoned," the answer sounds like this, "Hi, you've reached the frontal lobe. I am unable to come to the phone right now, so please leave a message after the beep." Unlike some more unfortunate souls, my frontal lobe checks its messages on occasion. Beeeeep.

The faculty at Ann Arbor Academy is very tolerant of individual differences that makes learning less stressful. (I didn't think it could be possible, did you?)

swing band the Johnstown Cats. For details and performance schedules, see Art Fair Entertainment, p. 71.

Live Broadcasts: WWJ (950 AM) broadcasts from the corner of Main and Huron.

Community Television Network: Anyone can be on television! Just stop by the CTN booths at the corner of Liberty and Fifth Avenue during fair hours. Mini-interviews with fairgoers will be telecast locally on cable Channel 19 for weeks after the fairs.

Main Street Area Association: The Guild maintains an ongoing relationship with this group of business and property owners who promote the downtown area. The association sells T-shirts and souvenirs and provides information about downtown Ann Arbor at its booth at Liberty and Main.

Main Street Area Association Food Court: Local restaurants and visiting vendors sell food and drinks at this food court on West Liberty between Main and Ashley beginning at 10 a.m. daily. Seating available. See Food at the Fair, p. 77.

Michigan Union: Tired fairgoers can relax in cool, comfortable rest areas and refuel in the basement food court at the Union near the fair's campus section. Wed. & Thurs. 7 a.m.-midnight, Fri. & Sat. 7 a.m.-2 a.m.

Michigan Union Food Court: When's the last time you had an ice cream float, a souvlaki, or an ice-cold strawberry daiquiri? You'll find colorful tents and exotic aromas in the usual spot between the Michigan Union and the Literature, Science, and the Arts Building. The court opens at 10:30 a.m. daily. See Food at the Fair, p. 77.

University of Michigan Museum of Art (UMMA): Bordering the fair's campus section, the UMMA houses the second-largest art collection in the state. At the corner of State and South University, the air-conditioned museum is open for extended hours during the fair (Wed.-Fri. 10 a.m.-9 p.m., Sat. 10 a.m.-6 p.m.). Admission is free, but a $5 donation is suggested.

The museum gift shop moves outside during the fair, selling discounted cards, posters, books, games, jewelry, and other art-related merchandise. Inside the museum, visitors can see works in all media and from all parts of the world, including paintings by Picasso, Monet, and Whistler. There will also be live music and activities for young people on the porch each day of the fair from 1 to 3 p.m. For more information, see Art Fair Entertainment, p. 71.

Nonprofit Organization Booths: Not affiliated with the fairs, the nonprofit booths that line Liberty between Fifth Avenue and Division are a sampler of community causes. Representatives from about seventy local organizations pass out literature and talk about everything from AIDS research to Mars exploration.

AN EYE FOR DESIGN IS JUST THE BEGINNING.

A competent designer can make any room beautiful. But creating an environment that has lasting value and is meaningful to you requires much more...

We listen carefully to fully understand your practical and aesthetic needs, preferences, and the way you live in your home.

We help you discover your own style, then interpret that style with the finest materials to complement your home's architecture and unique character.

The South University Area Association

presents:

Art Fair Village 2002

July 17th - 20th

The newest of the four fairs and already climbing to the top of the national ratings. Art Fair Village is located on Church Street in the heart of the South University Area, home of the Art Fair for over forty years. The forty-five nationally renowned exhibitors in this cutting edge fair are chosen by jury each year to maintain the highest quality in fine art and crafts. In addition, Ann Arbor's Neutral Zone Teen Center offers the work of talented local Teen Artists. The WEMU music stage provides live mellow jazz and blues performances from mid-day to fair close each day and area restaurants offer choices for all tastes. Local retailers provide color, interest and crowd pleasing bargains from their sidewalk displays.

In 2003 this fair will return to its roots expanding to encompass the entire South University Area and will present two hundred or more of the most prominent artists in the country.

Church Street, Ann Arbor, Michigan

Hours: Wednesday-Friday 10am-9pm • Saturday 10am-6pm

Art Fair Village

Art Fair Village, now in its third year, has turned the former trio of street fairs into a quartet. Run by the South University Area Association (SUAA), Art Fair Village offers a "festive yet relaxed" atmosphere that includes WEMU's jazz and blues stage, sidewalk merchants, and a working partnership with Ann Arbor's nonprofit teen center, the Neutral Zone. Forty-four juried artists from around the country present work in a wide range of media. Next year, when the Street Art Fair moves north of the Diag, Art Fair Village will take over South University and adjoining streets, creating space for five times as many artists. The 2003 fair will have a new name, awards for artists, and a mentoring program matching exhibitors with young artists.

The Place: Art Fair Village is on Church Street between South University and Willard.

South University Area Association: This nonprofit organization of area businesses promotes the South University shopping district. For information about exhibitors or the 2003 fair, July 16–19, write to South University Area Association, P.O. Box 4525, Ann Arbor, MI 48106–4525, or call (734) 663–5300. (Applications are due February 2003.)

Teen Factor: Several years ago, SUAA's Maggie Ladd called the Neutral Zone looking for summer volunteers to help plant flowers along South University. The project was so successful that when Ladd became director of Art Fair Village in 2000, she asked the local youth center for volunteers to help run the fair. Neutral Zone executive director Lisa Dengiz enthusiastically agreed and proposed a young people's art booth.

This year student artists run three booths donated by Art Fair Village. One booth showcases their artwork for sale; the other booths house a fund-raising raffle, a silent auction, and face painting. All sales go to support the Neutral Zone, an after-school drop-in center for high school students that provides recreational, social, educational, and leadership opportunities such as homework assistance, specialty youth groups, and poetry slams. In exchange for the showcase space, students help staff the fair's information booth, enforce parking barricades, pick up garbage overflow, maintain the artist hospitality lounge, and booth-sit for exhausted artists.

Silent Auction: Art Fair Village adult artists donate a piece of work for this fund-raiser to benefit the Neutral Zone. Thirty to fifty pieces of artwork will be auctioned. Winners will be notified by phone after the fair.

Information Booth: Youth volunteers staff this booth on the sidewalk extension near South University and Church, where visitors can pick up fair information and a menu guide to South University restaurants.

Live Music and Entertainment: WEMU (89.1 FM) hosts local blues and jazz artists at the intersection of Church and Willard.

Live Broadcasts: WEMU (89.1 FM) broadcasts live Wed.–Fri. 1–8 p.m. and Sat. TBA. Performances spotlight local blues and jazz musicians along with area school groups. Catch interviews with artists and community figures in between sets.

Food and Beverages: The refreshment tent is near the entertainment stage bordering Willard. Amer's sells sandwiches, salads, and smoothies; another local vendor specializes in Jamaican jerk dishes.

opera company in 2 short chamber operas. Douglas Moore's 1958 "soap opera" Gallantry offers a loopy tale, set in an operating room, about a married doctor trying to woo an engaged anesthetist. The tale is interspersed with "commercials" for soap and Billy Boy Wax, "the waxy wax that spells relax." Cast: Carole Marvin, Kristin Walukas, Mitch Gillette, and David Vaughn. Seymour Barab's hilarious 1988 operetta La Pizza con Funghi (The Mushroom Pie) is a murder mystery that skewers 19th-century opera conventions with overblown histrionics, musical clichés, and a completely unbelievable plot. Cast: Suzanne Hansen, Karin White, Michael Parr, Christopher Vaught. 8 p.m., Vitosha Cultural Center, 1917 Washtenaw Ave. at Berkshire. Tickets $15 in advance and at the door. 741-4969, 332-9063.
